

AccountMate Enterprise 2022

Added Security and Minimizes Information Exposure

(Petaluma, CA) (August 18, 2022) President and CEO, David Dierke, has announced the release of AccountMate Enterprise 2022. He commented, “by releasing consistent feature-rich AccountMate Enterprise versions, we continue to demonstrate to our customers how we make available feature-rich options to save them time and money, increase their productivity, and strengthen information security. For those customers who will use our latest AccountMate Enterprise 2022 software system, we have added feature enhancements that also prevent mistakes, reduce redundancies, and minimize information exposure.”

There are too many enhancements in AccountMate Enterprise 2022 to list them all, so some that demonstrate these benefits for security and reduce redundancies are: New Function Access Rights Listing shows user groups and the specific functions for which they are granted access rights; New report provides information about users and those extended security access rights; provides a list where in certain situations causes AccountMate users to be locked out of the system and who cannot log back in; enables a statistical batch journal entry that records non-financial transactions using a statistical code.

The Software Developer Kit (SDK) is available to aid in doing customizations. Source code remains a sellable option for clients.

Based on years of development in the Microsoft .NET environment, this AccountMate Enterprise architecture and updated navigation have been built differently than the AccountMate for SQL, Express and LAN products. Although the screen design is updated and can be different, the process workflow is standard with AccountMate’s other products. This makes learning the product quicker and easier for people upgrading from AccountMate SQL / AccountMate Express / AccountMate LAN. But the tenant of similar process flow within the AccountMate Enterprise modules is the basis of a consistent long-life software system for AccountMate clients. Inherent in this new product line is the basis for an easy transition from existing AccountMate products to AccountMate Enterprise to fit client requirements. Clients new to AccountMate should also be able to appreciate the uniqueness of this latest AccountMate Enterprise product.
